DEFICIENCIES IN RULE STANDARDS

Survey Date

This is the actual date in which the survey was conducted by the Bureau of Licensing. In the event the survey took more than one day, the date recorded is the last day of the survey.

Class

Assisted living facility rule violations are classified into Class I, Class II and Class III deficiencies. A Class I deficiency is any violation of a statute or rule relating to the operation or maintenance of an assisted living facility which presents imminent danger or a clear hazard to residents of the facility. These violations are subject to immediate resolution.

Class II deficiencies are violations of a statute or rule relating to the operation or maintenance of an assisted living facility which has direct or immediate relationship to the health, safety, or security of residents. Class II violations are subject to sanctions.

Class II violations are issued to unlicensed health care facilities.

Rule

The rule description of each violation is abstracted from the Utah Administrative Code of 2000. Rules R432-6 are representative of construction regulations; R432-270 are specific for assisted living facilities.

Rule Standard

The rule standard is the actual rule as listed from the Utah administrative Code.

ASSISTED LIVING FACILITY (TYPE I & II) REPORT

HOW TO READ THE INFORMATION

The informative deficiency report provides data taken from licensure inspections for at least one year. The standards used to inspect assisted living facilities are obtained from Health Facility Licensure Rules (Utah Administrative Code). The Bureau of Licensing performs on-site inspections (at least every 12-18 months) of assisted living facilities to ensure that they comply with licensure rules. During the inspection process, a team of inspectors observes how care is actually provided to residents. Assisted living facility rules (R432-270) are reviewed, and when a rule violation occurs, a deficiency statement is issued to the facility. This statement requires corrective action to be taken by the facility. Follow-up visits are a part of the inspection process to ensure that compliance is obtained. These follow-ups generally occur sixty days after the annual survey is completed. At this time the deficiency is resolved or another citation is issued.

The following is a section by section description of the information, which is included on each individual assisted living facility deficiency report.

Number of Beds

This is the total number of beds licensed by the Bureau of Licensing for that facility.

Type of Facility

An assisted living facility (RCF) is a facility providing assistance of daily living and social care to two or more residents who require protected living arrangements.

TYPES OF SURVEYS

New Facility Surveys

New Facility Surveys are also called Provisional Surveys. These surveys are done on new facilities within the first six months after they have received a license.

Routine Annual Surveys

Routine Annual Surveys are done on facilities that have been in operation for at least a year. These surveys are done on a 12 to 18 month basis, depending on the past performance of the facility.

Complaint Investigation Surveys

These surveys are made specifically to complaints that are received by the Bureau. They are only reported if there was a substantiation of rule violations during the investigation. The focus of the investigation depends on the number of allegations in the complaint and the scope of the problems found at the facility. It is possible to extend a complaint investigation to a full survey if the problems warrant a closer look at all aspects of the facility.

Survey Date

This is the actual date in which the survey was conducted by the Bureau of Licensing. In event the survey took more than one day, the date recorded is the last day of the survey.

Class

Assisted living facility rule violations are classified into Class I, Class II, and Class III deficiencies. A Class I deficiency is any violation of a statute or rule relating to the operation or maintenance of an assisted living facility which presents imminent danger or a clear hazard to residents of the facility. These violations are subject to immediate resolution.

Class II deficiencies are violations of a statute or rule relating to the operation or maintenance of an assisted living facility which has direct or immediate relationship to the health, safety, or security of residents. Class II violations are subject to sanctions.

Class III violations are issued to unlicensed health care facilities.

Rule #

The rule description of each violation is abstracted from the Utah Administrative Code of 1999. Rules R432-6 are representative of construction regulations; R432-270 are specific for assisted living facilities.

Rule Standard

The rule standard is the actual rule as listed from the Utah Administrative Code.
